

Branch Transfer

The Branch Transfer module controls the dispatching, receiving and control of inventory between warehouses.

The module allows a transfer request (order) to be entered and printed as a picking slip. Inventory can then be sent and separately received using an in-transit warehouse. All transactions are recorded against the original order for tracking any stock losses and discrepancies.

The Branch Transfer module is one in a range of modules, collectively known as the SP Toolkit, that are designed to assist with inventory and warehouse management.

Overview

The system allows a branch office to place a transfer order on another warehouse for stock to be transferred.

The sending warehouse can then print a picking slip and prepare the inventory for dispatch using their standard procedures (i.e. for dispatching to a customer). The inventory sent is then confirmed against the order. The system allows for backorders if necessary.

An optional receiving stage allows the receiving branch to load the order and enter the quantities received.

The system tracks the quantity ordered, the total quantity sent and the total quantity received.

A transfer report is available to print the status of orders and also highlight any stock which has been sent but not yet received or short received.
